

Scintilla Case Study

Kraft Heinz: Mac is Back!

The Kraft Heinz logo is displayed within a white rounded rectangular box. The word "Kraft" is in a bold, dark blue, sans-serif font, and "Heinz" is in a red, cursive script font.The Inspire 2024 logo features the word "Inspire" in a white, sans-serif font with a small, colorful, abstract graphic above the letter 'i'. Below "Inspire" is the year "2024" in a smaller, white, sans-serif font.

This case study was shared live at Walmart Data Ventures Inspire Event, October 1, 2024.

Gabi Caceres
Merchant, Meals
Walmart

Philip Nichols
Sales Lead, Meals
Kraft Heinz

Kalyn Oden
Category Growth
Kraft Heinz

Matt Kemp
Sr. Manager, Category Growth
Kraft Heinz

Lucy Heyman
Consulting Director
dunnhumby

If it makes sense for the customer, it will make sense for business.

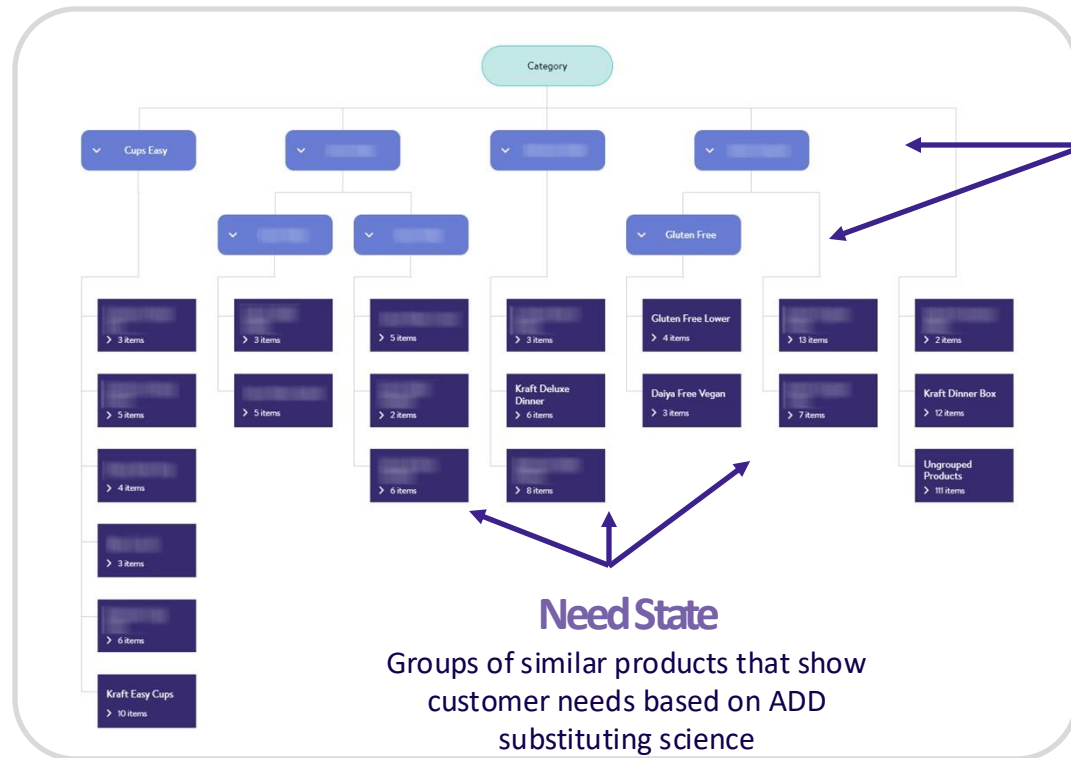

-Gabi Caceres, Merchant, Meals | Walmart

Kraft Heinz Scintilla Case Study: Kraft Heinz

The opportunity:

Ahead of their Mac & Cheese line review, the team at Kraft-Heinz ran the Scintilla Shopper Behavior Assortment Deep Dive (ADD) and Customer Priority reports to better understand the category. This research revealed that the Customer Decision Tree (CDT) did not align with the setup of their current modular.

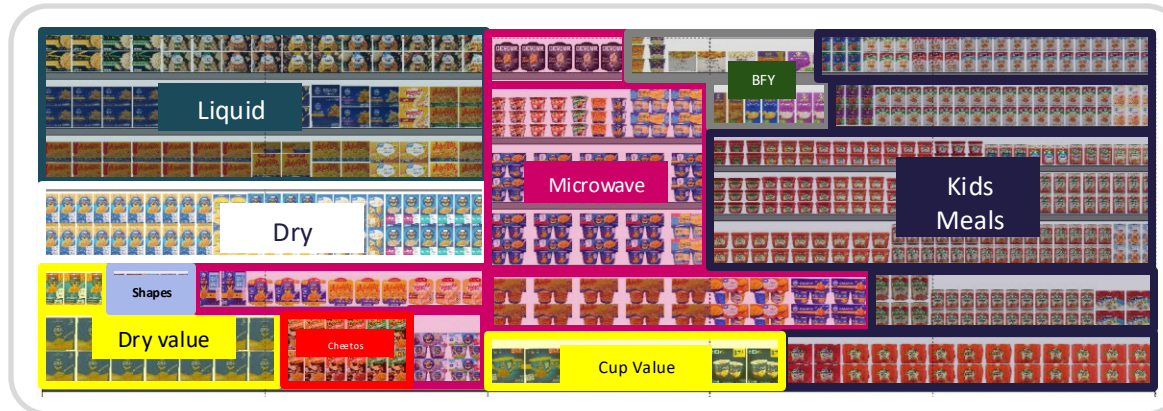

KraftHeinz Scintilla Case Study: Kraft Heinz

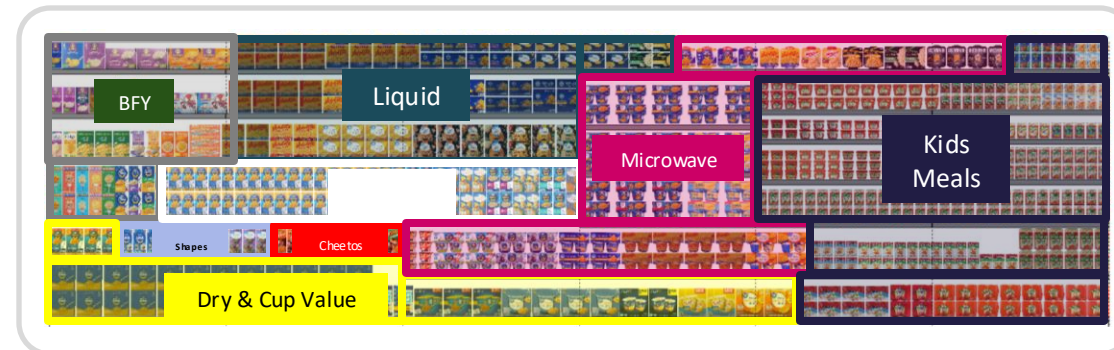

The approach:

They took this as an opportunity to reorganize the shelf to better reflect the CDT insights and help enhance the customer experience. These included attempting to create shopping destinations within the mod that aligned with specific customer decisions, like individual Liquid and Dry categories or moving the Microwave segment to coincide with Kids Meals. Their Merchant agreed!

Pre mod change

Post mod change

KraftHeinz Scintilla Case Study: Kraft Heinz
The results:

Since implementing these data backed recommendations with their Walmart Merchant, the mod is performing well and units, dollars, and customers are all up.

